CMIT Solutions of the Tri-Cities: The Instant IT Department for Small Business Owners

New Business Provides Professional, Affordable Support, Training and Solutions

Batavia, IL (Grassroots Newswire) May 5, 2010 -- For a small business owner, frozen servers, frequent viruses, disabled e-mail and inadequate technical support can be an ulcer-inducing nightmare of lost productivity and vanishing profits.

But for most of today's businesses, the costs of maintaining a separate IT department are prohibitive. So upper management crosses their fingers every day hoping nothing will go wrong and when something does, they end up calling a brother, sister or cousin who "knows computers."

"Which ends up costing them in the long run," said Deb Reiter, owner of CMIT Solutions, which recently opened in Batavia. "We usually end up getting a call when there's an emergency and these small business owners aren't getting the service they need."

Whether it's removing spyware from company servers or helping companies develop software solutions to handle growth, CMIT Solutions of the Tri-Cities knows the challenges facing small business owners. Not only are they small business owners themselves, but they focus almost entirely on businesses with fewer than 100 employees.

"These businesses have the same needs as larger ones, just not in the same volume," Reiter said.

CMIT Solutions has built a national organization by providing affordable services from certified professionals. By partnering with industry giants like Dell, Symantec and Intuit, CMIT has established itself as a company that small business owners can consider a trusted, reliable, long-term partner.

"We provide peace of mind," Reiter said. "We want our clients working on growing their business, not worrying about their computers."

CMIT Solutions provides a free assessment of a company's technology infrastructure to help a small business owner understand CMIT's capabilities and establish the foundation of a beneficial partnership.

Business owners in and around the Tri-Cities are invited to contact Deb Reiter at 630.444.7119 or dreiter@cmitsolutions.com to discuss how CMIT Solutions can help them focus on their business not their computers. Visit their website at <http://www.cmitsolutions.com/ttc>
